A BIT OF ADVICE.

The Hunter Found Good Cause to Be Grateful For It.

"I was never so grateful for anything in my life as for a bit of advice given me by a stranger, and if I could find him now I would buy him the best suit of clothes that could be made," said a Pittsburg man. "It was some years ago as I was starting on a hunting trip up in Canada that I ran across a stranger in the smoking compartment of the car, and we got into a discussion over sports of different kinds.

"I mentioned that I was on my way to Canada for a hunting trip. To this he said: 'I will give you a piece of advice that an old hunter gave me a long time ago. Whenever you are in doubt as to whether a moving object is a deer or not or when you cannot see it clearly enough to know either let out a yell or wait until you are absolutely sure of your game.' He told me if I remembered that it might save me feeling bad in after years. I have always remembered it and in several instances have found it saved me getting into trouble.

"I thanked him, but, of course, thought, like many others, that I would not need any such advice, as I had common sense enough to know when to shoot and when not to. I stopped at the cabin of a settler to whom I had been accredited and found comfortable quarters and good hunting.

"One day I thought I would take my rifle and go out a short distance, as my host had said he saw signs of deer when he was out the day before. So I strolled off into the woods and wandered about for an hour or more. Then, finding nothing, I started for the house. Suddenly, in a thicket just ahead, I saw a deer. Up came my rifle to my shoulder, and I was about to pull the trigger when the thought of the stranger's advice came into my head. It is queer, but I had not thought of it since until that moment I was not absolutely sure what I saw was a deer, and I gave a yell.

"It was answered immediately by a call from my host, who was out looking for the cow, and he stepped forth from the place where I had thought there was a deer. If I had fired I would have killed him. He came over to where I was standing all of a-tremble and so weak that I had to lean on the tree. He noticed my condition and inquired what was the matter. I managed to excuse my feelings in some fashion and we walked home. At every step I breathed a prayer of gratitude to that stranger, and so if I ever meet him again he will get some substantial token of what I owe him. As for my host, he never knew how near he came to death that afternoon."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

One Kind of Friendship.

In the village where I live I was in the habit of visiting two poor, infirm old women, one inhabiting the single downstairs room, the other occupying the garret above her. Each kept a jealous watch as to whether I bestowed more tea or sixpences on the other, and each was sure to tell me every ill trait she could hear of the other. One day the old lady who lived upstairs, thanking me effusively for my visit, said: "You're the only lady ever comes near me, the only friend I have. That one," pointing downward, "has hapes of friends," adding hastily, lest I should be too favorably impressed by that circumstance, "and there's not wan of them but hates her." I thought to myself that such a description of friendship may sometimes apply to higher circles than that of my poor old friend.—London Spectator.

Take it as it Comes.

Once a smart hare met a wise fox.

"B-r-r-r!" chattered the hare. "What's the trouble, my friend?" queried the fox craftily.

"Why, this weather is terrible. I am almost frozen."

The wise fox winked up at the crow in the tree.

"In that case, my friend," he chuckled, "I think you will find it warmer inside than it is outside."

Without further ceremony he swallowed the hare.

Moral.—It is not always a safe policy to complain about the weather.—Chicago News.

A Waste of Money.

The real estate firm of Solomon & O'Sullivan had lots for sale in a new suburban addition. O'Sullivan, young, enthusiastic and Irish, was writing the advertisement, the national eloquence flowing from his pen. He urged impending purchasers to seize the passing moment.

"Napoleon not only met opportunity; he created it!"

Mr. Solomon read this line in the advertisement slowly and carefully. "This fellow Napoleon," he said—"what's the use of advertising him with our money?"

He Drew the Line.

One of the governors of Missouri, Claiborn F. Jackson, married one after another five sisters. "When for the fifth time," says Arthur Herkimer, the Missouri historian, "Jackson broached a marital proposition to his father-in-law the old man was eighty and quite deaf. This is the conversation that ensued:

"I want Lizzie!"

"Hey?"

"I want you—to give me—Elizabeth."

"Oh, you want me to give you Elizabeth, do you? What for?"

"For my wife."

"For your life?"

"I want—to—marry—Lizzie!"

"Oh, yes, I hear you. You needn't rouse the neighborhood."

"Well, do you consent?"

"Yes; I consent," said the old man, and he shook his head and added slowly:

"Yes, you can have her. You've got 'em all now, my boy. But for goodness sake if anything happens to that girl don't come back here and ask me for the old woman."

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Aches and Pains will Disappear if the Advice of This Titusville Citizen is Followed

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault. Backache is really kidney aches; That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Titusville women know this. Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. W. H. Parker, living on Washington avenue, Titusville, Fla., says: "I had been greatly troubled with kidney disease for sometime, and Doan's Kidney Pills benefited me in every way. I am pleased to give them my endorsement. I suffered most constantly from dull nagging backaches, accompanied by intense pains through the region of my kidneys. The kidney secretions were very irregular in action, and at times caused me a great amount of annoyance. I could not rest well at night and morning arose with headaches and dizzy spells. I used a great many remedies and also doctored for a long time but did not improve. My mother finally advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills as they had given her great relief. I procured a box, used them according to directions, and they gave me the desired results in a short time. I feel a great deal better since using Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to recommend them to other sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
